Professional Profile

The overwhelming majority of my life has been spent working on fiction, fictional worlds, and characters in some capacity. I have written novels and short stories, built worlds such as the ancient-medieval fantasy setting of Wulfgard and the high sci-fi setting of Nova Refuge, created roleplay rulesets and managed roleplay sessions, and more.

Having always had a fascination with certain topics and after having worked as a university-level instructor, earning a Master's degree, and written many articles, I have become very proficient in performing research, translating to and from certain other languages, and translating that research into a concise and understandable format. My greatest strengths perhaps lie in storytelling, dialogue and characterization, and research.

Self-Publications

  - Available physically and digitally on Amazon.com, other booksellers online, and Wulfgard.net
  - The first novel in a series set in mine and my brother's medieval fantasy universe, Wulfgard
- Tales of Wulfgard, Volume I – November 2016
  - Available digitally on Amazon.com
  - A short story collection set in the same universe

Career Summary

August 2015 – May 2017      Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University; Blacksburg, VA
Instructor/ GTA

As a Graduate Teaching Assistant, I taught five classes of ENGL 1105 or 1106, required introductory writing and research courses at the university. Coursework included oral presentations, multiple rhetorical essays, written reflections, and class discussions. Classes were taught solo but often were observed by mentors and supervisors, and I worked with many ESL students, as well as at the writing center.

- Taught 5 classes of ENGL 1105 or ENGL 1106 after observing similar classes
- Taught many ESL students
- Participated in frequent teaching talks and workshops to discuss and improve teaching methods at the university
- Worked in the Newman Library Writing Center
- Published thesis, The Werewolf: Past and Future, through Virginia Tech; extensive study and examination of perceptions of werewolves and wolves through history and folklore, leading to the negative and potentially destructive conceptions seen in modern pop culture
- Published multiple research articles and essays locally at the university, including subjects on werewolf and vampire studies, folklore studies, world myth, and video game studies
